Walthamstow is on the up

Eye-catching improvement works to a parade of shopfronts give Walthamstow High Street a new look Shopfront improvements have transformed the section of Walthamstow High Street opposite the arcade site, renovating and restoring characterful elements of the buildings, providing new shop fascias in traditional materials, and supplying new awnings and shutters.

"They look absolutely marvellous," said Council Leader Chris Robbins. "We carried out a similar scheme last year down on High Road Leyton and buoyed by the success of that we decided to extend to other parts of the borough."

The £400,000 investment in the Walthamstow shopfronts is just one of the ways the Council is looking to regenerate areas throughout the borough. In September the Council announced a £9million regeneration programme that will increase the vitality and viability of nine borough High Streets.

"Walthamstow really is on the up," said Cllr Robbins. "The Travelodge development at the station is well underway and the recent improvements made to the market will help maintain it as the focal point of the community, as it has been for the past 125 years."

A planning consultation is currently underway for a new multi-screen cinema, leisure and housing complex on the arcade site. The consultation will close on Friday 30 November. If approved the development would not only complement the shopfront improvements in providing a fantastic gateway to the rest of the High Street, but fulfil some of the ambitions expressed by residents.

"We know residents are crying out for better shops and better leisure facilities in this borough and it is just this sort of investment that can help turn those aspirations into realities," said Cllr Robbins.

In my opinion

Father Steven Saxby

St Barnabas Church, Walthamstow

I guess it's a sign of getting old that I can look back and reflect on how things have changed over the last twenty years. In 1991, I became a volunteer with a project for people living with HIV. That was the year that the red ribbon was adopted as a symbol for World Aids Day and every year since

I have helped to organise a time of prayer on 1 December to mark the day.

It's great that much has changed over the years in terms of attitudes towards HIV and AIDS. Back then there was a lot of blame and discrimination, sadly much of it from church leaders. But, increasingly, the churches have been at the forefront of HIV and AIDS work in the UK and abroad, including helping to eradicate the stigma of living with HIV.

Waltham Forest has an issue with late HIV diagnosis. Recent studies have shown people living with diagnosed HIV can expect a near-normal life expectancy, provided they are diagnosed early in the course of their infection.

"Getting to Zero" is a United Nations campaign which calls for zero discrimination for people living with HIV. I am glad to be part of an event with the local authority and others aimed at reaching out to people with HIV, in the hope that we can eradicate stigma here and show those living with HIV in this borough that they are not alone.

The event is called "Celebration of Life" as it aims to highlight that you can live a positive life with HIV. I am so happy that so many of my friends from years ago are still alive and living positively with HIV. The free event on World AIDS Day will be a celebration with food, drink and young performers.

At the same time, we do not stop remembering those whose lives were cut short by AIDS-related deaths. This year we will be holding our World AIDS Day service in partnership with House of Rainbow Fellowship. There will be music, reflection time and an opportunity to light candles as we pray for those who have died and celebrate those living positively with HIV.

So, I am looking forward to seeing some of you for prayers at St Barnabas Church (E17 8JZ) from 6.30pm on Saturday 1 December and, afterwards, for "Celebration of Life" in the Foster Hall (E17 8JZ) from 8pm onwards. All are very welcome to both.

Local charity wins Stonewall award

- Local charity ELOP named as Stonewall's Community Group of the Year
- Awards celebrate organisations that positively represent lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people

Walthamstow-based charity East London Out Project (ELOP) has won a prestigious national award for its work to help lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people.

ELOP received Stonewall's Community Group of the Year award at a ceremony held at the Victoria and Albert Museum on Thursday 1 November. The charity also collected a £5,000 cheque from the Inclusive Foundation to support its work with vulnerable gay people.

Stonewall is the UK's national lesbian, gay and bisexual charity and their annual awards seek to recognise the individuals and organisations that help give a positive representation of gay people in the media and who support LGBT people.

ELOP is a lesbian and gay centre which offers a range of social, emotional and support services to people in London. Its core services include counselling and young people's services, including support groups and in-school education. They also offer training and consultancy for professionals looking to understand the issues facing LGBT people.

The charity assists more than 5,000 Londoners a year.

ELOP's Chair Sarah Humphreys told Waltham

Forest News: "We are absolutely delighted to have received this award, and it is fantastic to have the value and impact of our work recognised in this way by the community."

"This award reinforces our determination to continue supporting those who experience homophobia and discrimination."

"This is a tremendous achievement," said Cllr Liaquat Ali, Cabinet Member for Community Safety and Cohesion. "ELOP works tirelessly, and while no charity does what they do in order to receive accolades, I can't think of much higher - or more deserved - praise than recognition from an organisation as respected as Stonewall."

Teresa Sharpe, ELOP CEO, added: it's not being lesbian or gay that makes people ill - it's the discrimination and the homophobia and the hostility we still have to face. While young people are still over-represented in the mental health system for self-harm and suicide, organisations like ELOP must persist."

New housing scheme opened

Cllr Marie Pye; Ahmed Mapara, CEO of NLMHA, Council Leader Chris Robbins and Ismail Yusuf, Chair of NLMHA at the opening ceremony

High Road Leyton received another rejuvenating boost on Wednesday 7 November, with the official opening of Oriana House.

The new development at the junction of Grange Park Road and High Road Leyton was built thanks to a partnership between North London Muslim Housing Association and Islington and Shoreditch Housing Association on a previously dilapidated site. The modern, energy-efficient development consists of 30 social rented homes and six shared ownership properties, all of which have been filled via Waltham Forest's choice-based lettings system. The scheme cost £6.5million, £4.1million of which came from a government social housing grant.

"Anyone who lives in Leyton or regularly passes through can't help but notice the improvement Oriana House has made to the local area," Chris Robbins, Leader of Waltham Forest Council, told Waltham Forest News after formally opening the development.

"It's a modern, eye-catching development and perfectly complements what the Council has done to improve Leyton's streets and shops – two of our main aims for the regeneration of Waltham Forest as a whole."

Other attendees included Waltham Forest's Cabinet Member for Housing, Cllr Marie Pye and local councillors Bob Sullivan, Farooq Qureshi, Winnifred Smith and Mohammed Asghar.

"As with every London borough, there's a pressing need for social and affordable housing in Waltham Forest," said Cllr Marie Pye. "While demand is growing, the slow economy has meant fewer and fewer schemes are being developed. Oriana House thankfully bucks this trend, representing a fantastic new start for 36 of the borough's families as well as an attractive new feature for High Road Leyton."

In brief

Celebrating Diwali

Hundreds of residents joined the Council for an evening of music and entertainment to celebrate Diwali at Walthamstow Assembly Hall on Sunday 16 November. Popularly known as the Festival of Lights, Diwali is an important five-day festival celebrated by Hindus, Jains and Sikhs. The festival celebrates the victory of good over evil, light over darkness and knowledge over ignorance. For Hindus the festival honours Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth. For Sikhs, Diwali is particularly important because it celebrates the release from prison of the sixth guru, Guru Hargobind in 1619. The festival also has special significance in Jainism, as it marks the day that Mahavira gave his last teachings and attained ultimate liberation.

Blue plaque for Bearmans

When a local resident contacted the Council suggesting that some recognition be given to the part that Bearmans department store played in the history of Leytonstone, the Council couldn't help but agree.

Bearmans was a popular shopping destination in Leytonstone from its opening in 1898 until it finally closed its doors in 1983. Many local people have very fond memories of the store, with forums on the internet sharing memories.

One ex-resident now living in New Zealand wrote, "I remember Mum taking my sister and me to see Father Christmas at Bearmans department store during the 1950s. This was our main Christmas treat and every year Bearmans had a different 'grotto' theme. Sometimes we had to queue for ages to get into the grotto. It was a great store."

To commemorate the site of the old department store

– now occupied by Matalan – the Council recently unveiled a blue heritage plaque. Those interested in local history will also be pleased to hear that the old advertisement for Bearmans can still be seen at the entrance to Leytonstone underground station.

Cllr Clyde Loakes, Cabinet Member for Environment, said, "We very much value our local heritage in Waltham Forest and recognise the important social and economic significance that stores like Bearmans played in the development of the area."

New Year fireworks

Residents can make sure that 2013 starts with a bang, as Waltham Forest Council is putting on two free fireworks displays to mark the end of a special year of celebration and welcome in the New Year. The displays will take place at The Highams Park (Charter Road, Woodford Green, IG8 9RE) and Leyton Jubilee Park (Marsh Lane, Leyton E10 7DE) on Wednesday 2 January 2013. The events will take place from 5.30 to 8pm. The fireworks will be choreographed to music and refreshments will be available to buy. Keep an eye out for more information in the 17 December edition of Waltham Forest News.

Stop allotments taking over Olympic Park

Residents are being short changed by plans to develop the Olympic Park, with the section of the Park in Waltham Forest set to include allotments. The Council has consistently and whole-heartedly rejected these plans year after year as it believes the Olympic Park should be open to all, providing leisure and recreational facilities that create a lasting world-class legacy for Waltham Forest and London as a whole. The London Legacy Development Corporation is asking local people to help shape the future of the Olympic Park, and the Council is urging residents to have their say and help stop allotments from taking over the Olympic Park.

Priorities

Helping you and your family

Waltham Forest Council has four key priorities to help improve the lives of residents. In this edition we look at what is being done to help you and your family gain access to training and education that helps you get a job whatever your age

Helping local people access work and take advantage of the employment opportunities in Waltham Forest and on the borough's doorstep is a priority for the Council.

With Canary Wharf, the City Fringe and the new shopping and entertainment district in Stratford just a tube ride away, Waltham Forest residents are well placed to access the employment opportunities on offer in these nearby areas. And to ensure that young people are able to make the most of the jobs available, the Council played a leading role in last week's Youth Employment Summit.

Chaired by the Leader of Waltham Forest Council, Chris Robbins, the summit saw community leaders from across north and east London join together with heads of voluntary sector organisations to tackle the issue of youth unemployment head on.

Taking place at Tottenham

Town Hall the event looked for new ways of tackling worklessness and giving young people the skills and education they need to get into the world of work.

As Chair of the North London Strategy Alliance Chris Robbins introduced the event, he said: "Youth unemployment is a serious issue and we need to understand the barriers that young people face when trying to access work so that we can provide them with the tools they need to overcome them. With the number and variety of jobs available in the capital it is unacceptable that young people in north and east London are struggling to find employment.

"Unless we address this problem now we will be left with a lost generation of alienated and unemployed people."

Bringing together employers and those people who provide services for young people in north and east London, the event was designed to make sure that all of these organisations worked together effectively to make sure that the area's young people get the support they need to find and retain work. The outcome of the discussions will be used to plan and influence how services are delivered in the future.

As well as developing strategies that reach across borough boundaries to tackle endemic worklessness and break the cycle of poverty, the Council is doing everything it can to work with local employers and residents to help them access work.

An agreement between the Council and Tesco saw the supermarket chain's new store in Highams Park employ 75 local people. Opening last month, the new recruits not only secured employment but also benefitted from training, gaining qualifications in customer service and food safety in catering.

We've also seen the construction of the £7.5 million Construction Skills Centre in Leytonstone, which means local people can get the skills they need to enter the building trade. Training at the state-of-the-art facility began in November 2010 and the aim to have 1,000 people pass through the centre in the first year was surpassed, with over 1,675 people receiving training in the first year alone.

And the Council's Community Learning and Skills Service (CLaSS) is providing regular Job Skills Workshops to help residents identify their skills and make an action plan to help them get the job they want.

Councillor Mark Rusling, Cabinet Member for Economic Development and Corporate Resources, said, "The workshops can make a real difference to residents looking for work. It can be incredibly demoralising to keep trying for jobs and getting nowhere.

"However, sometimes it may mean just a few simple changes. Applying for the right sorts of jobs suited to your skillset and making sure your approach is appropriate and your CV is clear and informative are all ways to increase your chances of success."

What you say

Residents tell Waltham Forest News what they think of the Council's work and training opportunities

Brendan O'Sullivan, Walthamstow

Theresa Achilleos, Walthamstow

Agnieszka Watras, Walthamstow

Sydney Lindo, Walthamstow

"I think young people need to be more proactive and more entrepreneurial and where they need new skills they should seek them out. My son has a job where his firm gives him day release to go to college. More stuff like that would help."

"We need to find ways to inspire and support everyone looking for work – not just young people. There are a lot of people out there with skills they can utilise and pass on. The Council, businesses and everyone needs to be involved."

"I would like there to be ways of helping make work more flexible so that I can work around it and my child's needs. I would also like there to be more face-to-face help. I think the stuff on the Council website is good, but they could provide more."

"The free internet access at libraries is great for job hunting and the Council's Job Workshops are really helpful too. There should be more of that sort of thing, and a broader range of apprenticeships and training courses made available."

"At the end of the day councils have limited resources these days and can only do so much. But if they can help encourage apprenticeships so that people can learn skills on the job, or even at college, then that would be of help I'm sure."

Priority: Helping you and your family

Commitment:

- Not raise council tax and will continue to fund the freedom pass.
- Make sure you have access to training and education that helps you get a job whatever your age.
- Support schools so that they can deliver a high quality education for our young people in decent buildings.
- Work with the community to keep vulnerable adults and children safe.

Priority: Making our community a safer place

Priority: Keeping our borough clean

Priority: Bringing you better shopping, streets and leisure

Snow business

- Snow Angels scheme on the verge of having 500 signed up volunteers
- Residents can be good neighbours by supporting the Council's winter work

While Waltham Forest Council does much to combat the effects of the notorious British winter – from deploying a fleet of gritters to implementing contingency plans to ensure vital services are maintained – the truth is it is impossible for Council staff alone to clear every single street in the borough the morning after it snows.

The Council's Snow Angels scheme, established three years ago, helps enable residents to clear snow from their streets by providing volunteers with a 20kg bag of grit, a branded hi-visibility vest, protective gloves and a snow scoop or shovel.

Cllr Clyde Loakes, Cabinet

Member for Environment, told Waltham Forest News: "The Snow Angels campaign really pulls communities closer together by finding willing volunteers to help their neighbourhoods.

"With a little bit of effort a small number of people on each street can make pavements and pathways safe for neighbours who may be pregnant, elderly or disabled and therefore nervous about going outside for fear of slipping."

As well as providing equipment to Snow Angels, the Council has also greatly increased the number of grit bins around the borough, upping them from 97 in 2009/10 to 176 today. It has also put them in strategic spots around the borough so that Council employees and Snow Angels alike have easy access.

"We've managed to increase the number of Snow Angels by over 100 since last year and just need another dozen or so people to hit 500 before the snow starts to fall," said Cllr Loakes. "If you're willing and able I would urge you to get in touch – it's a great way to do your bit for your street."

And for those who believe the myth that you will be sued if you clear a path of snow, note the Department of Transport advice that there's no law stopping you from clearing snow and ice on the pavement outside your home or from public spaces. But you should follow the snow code and clear snow and ice safely. So if you want to help your neighbours this winter, sign up to be one of the borough's Snow Angels.

Christmas parking changes

- Council announces new parking measures to encourage Christmas shoppers
- Free parking on Saturdays, Thursday evenings and 15 minutes in voucher bays during December

Free parking to help businesses and shoppers this Christmas

Residents wishing to run their pre-Christmas errands and shopping trips by car should find motoring a little easier this December, after the Council announced temporary changes to parking controls in the borough.

"These measures are designed to encourage Christmas shoppers to keep their trade within the borough," said Cllr Clyde Loakes, Cabinet Member for Environment, on announcing Waltham Forest Council's plans to relax parking regulations over the festive season.

There will be two hours free parking in Town Centre car parks all day on the four Saturdays in December before Christmas (Saturday 1, 8, 15 and 22 December) and from 4pm on the three Thursday evenings before Christmas (Thursday 6, 13 and 20 December).

The car parks included in the scheme are Brandon Road E17, Church Lane E11, Hall Lane E4, High Street E17, Linford Road E17, Mission Grove E17, Richmond Road E4, South Grove E17 and Stanley Road E10.

In addition there will be no parking enforcement taking place on Bank Holidays and no vehicle removals on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve after 12.30pm.

To further assist local businesses in the run up to Christmas the Council is also building on the success of its scheme to allow 15 minutes of free parking in voucher bays.

The scheme has been in operation in Station Road, Chingford Mount and Leyton High Road since July 2011 and its success has persuaded the Council to allow 15 minutes of free parking in all voucher bays across the borough throughout the entire month of December.

In addition, the scheme will be rolled out to all voucher bays across the borough in the New Year – and should be fully operational by March 2013.

Another string to their bows

- Local violin group awarded BBC Performing Arts Fund grant
- Strung Out is open to adults violinists of all abilities

Members of local violin group Strung Out are breaking out their bows for a celebratory tune after receiving a grant from a BBC community music scheme.

The BBC Performing Arts Fund has given over £250,000 to community music groups across the UK, and awarded Strung Out £6550 to develop an original piece of music in collaboration with other local community music groups.

Strung Out is an adults-only violin group that was founded by professional musician Alison Jones in March 2010. The aim of the group is to provide a fun and supportive local club for new and old violinists alike.

Alison told Waltham Forest News: "I set up Strung Out because I thought there was a need for a fun, non-competitive violin group in Walthamstow. I'd often have people telling me they used to play violin when they were younger and say they wanted to start again but thought it was too long since they'd played to do anything about it.

"The idea of the group was to help people dust off their old violins and give them a way group for improvers and an advanced group. Everyone is welcome to come along and have a go, even if they have not played for many years or are a complete beginner.

Alison said: "It's a really relaxed atmosphere and as on Sunday 9 December.

"I love that in Walthamstow there are so many groups that come together and collaborate on different projects," added Alison. "It's happened so naturally and there are certainly a lot of talented people living in E17."

Strung Out will now use the BBC grant to develop a new symphony inspired by the word 'express'. Led by Strung Out it will be a collaboration with other local community groups and professional musicians, with vocals provided by audience participation. The Express Symphony will be performed locally and at regional music festivals in 2013 including the East End Film Festival and The Stow Festival.

"You're never too old to learn to play an instrument."

to refresh their skills and start playing and having fun with music again. I also wanted to attract people who had never played before. You're never too old to learn to play an instrument and I think the key is to make sure you have fun at the same time, which is what Strung Out is all about.

"We started out with one general group, but the response was brilliant and we started attracting more and more members. We now have three groups, so musicians of all abilities can join in."

Strung Out now offers meetings for absolute beginners, one 'easy' well as learning to play or improving it's a great chance to meet people and make new friends. I'd encourage anyone who thinks they might like to play the violin to come along to one of our sessions and try it out."

The group has performed locally a number of times and during the summer appeared with the Walthamstow Acoustic Massive (WAM) as part of The Stow Festival.

Strung Out will also perform at a Community Christmas Concert with Walthamstow's Natural Voices Choir at Orford House Social Club (73 Orford Road, E17 9QR)

In brief

Ricky Haynes, centre, is British Judo's Club Coach of the Year

Ricky wins national judo award

A judo coach from Waltham Forest has been named as the British Judo Association's Club Coach of the Year. Ricky Haynes received his award from Britain's Olympic Judo Silver medallist Gemma Gibbons at the British Judo Awards, which took place at the Heritage Motor Centre in Warwickshire on Saturday 10 November. Ricky started Kelmscott Judo Club back in 1981 and hasn't looked back since, teaching residents of all ages and training many of the club's current coaches from beginner to black belt status.

Pani Theodorou coaches young hockey players

Pani's big surprise

Local hockey club coach Pani Theodorou, who has been a member of Waltham Forest Hockey Club (WFHC) for over 10 years, recently appeared on the ITV show 'Surprise, Surprise' in recognition of her work to get more people playing hockey. Pani set up and coached a fourth ladies team for WFHC to encourage more women to play hockey for the first time and in the last 18 months began an under eights section and set up London's first pan-disability hockey section - Forest Flyerz. Pani was nominated to appear on the show by Access Sport, who has backed her plans to replicate Forest Flyerz at hockey clubs throughout the South East. Pani set up the group in November 2011 to offer disabled children the opportunity to try hockey in a relaxed, fun environment. The sessions now have 20 regular players and Forest Flyerz is being used across the country as an example of how to introduce disability sport into existing clubs.

Services

The visit by Her Majesty the Queen, the Olympic Torch relay evening celebration event, Winter Wonderland and the Love Your Borough Awards were all organised by the Council's events team

The main events

- Waltham Forest Council's events team organises free events for residents across the borough
- A look back at some of this year's highlights including the Big 6, Fantastic Fireworks and the Love Your Borough Awards

During the past year thousands of you attended a host of free Council-organised events that took place at venues across the length and breadth of borough.

Every year the Council's events team is responsible for organising a programme of community events for residents of all ages. This year there were more than 25 different family-friendly celebrations and activities that took place, which entertained well over 100,000 residents.

Highlights included the annual Love Your Borough Awards, the Chingford Day Dance Festival, Eid celebrations, Diwali celebrations, Leyton Day and Waltham Forest Mela, Fantastic Fireworks, a Black History Month Comedy Gala Night, Senior Citizens Christmas Lunches and much, much more.

The events are a way for the community to mark important days and festivals, celebrate the wealth of different cultures that thrive in the borough and help bring the community together and offer the chance for you to meet people in your neighbourhoods.

As 2012 was such a special year for Waltham Forest the Council also organised the Big 6 as a way of helping local people celebrate the Olympic year and also to say 'thank you' for bearing with us while the Olympics were underway.

The Big 6 began in December 2011 with Winter Wonderland and 2012 started with a bang with two eye-popping fireworks celebrations. Pop stars a-plenty descended on the borough for Party on the Pitch and Urban Classic.

The penultimate event, Festival of Sport, saw thousands of residents try out new sports and get tips on how to improve their game from local sports clubs and Aussie Olympians.

Finally, the Forest Film Fest ran from Friday 31 August to Sunday 2 September and saw thousands of local people watch Disney favourites, classic thrillers and modern-day blockbusters like Avatar and the Dark Knight.

Well over 55,000 residents attended the Big 6 events in total, meaning roughly one in five of you tipped up to be entertained over the course of the Olympic Year.

Alongside the Big 6 and other regular Council events we of course had a visit from Her Majesty the Queen, hosted the Olympic Flame for a spectacular evening celebration and cheered on the Paralympic Torch Relay as it made its way across London towards the Olympic Park.

And the fun isn't over yet, as the Council will host a series of free Christmas celebration events for our older residents in December. This follows the success of last year's events which saw over 800 residents join the Council for a two course Christmas meal and entertainment. This year's events will take place in Chingford, Leyton and Walthamstow.

"2012 was an absolutely spectacular year for Waltham Forest on many, many levels," Council Leader, Chris Robbins, told Waltham Forest News. "It was a year of one-offs, whether you were cheering on the Olympic Flame, sharing the triumphs of team GB or welcoming Her Majesty the Queen to the borough.

"We set out to tap into this excitement with the events we hosted, and judging by the smiling faces we saw and the feedback we received I'd say we achieved just that."

Even though 2012 and the Big 6 has come to an end, there will still be plenty of ways for you to have fun with friends and family next year. The Council will once again organise an exciting programme of events for residents in 2013 – including New Year's fireworks on 2 January. So keep an eye out on the Council website and future editions of Waltham Forest News for more information.

Waltham Forest

We are continuing our work to create a better place for residents to live. Here we bring you up-to-date with the latest news and information.

Better High Streets

You have told us that improving the borough's streets and shopping facilities continues to be a priority and the Council has committed to spend £9million on improving the borough's high streets over the next few years.

Over 600 residents took part in a survey on the Lea Bridge Road and Bakers Arms area. The survey asked residents about their views on safety, traffic, parking and their shopping experience in the area. These results will feed into the improvements for this area.

Surveys will be done on other areas in due course, so keep an eye out for a chance to have your say.

Better Leisure

You only have a few days left to tell us your views on plans to transform the Arcade site into an exciting new hub for leisure and entertainment.

A planning application for the proposed new cinema development has been received by the Council for a new nine screen cinema with approximately 1,200 seats, accompanied by new restaurants and shops on the ground floor.

The proposal also includes the provision of 121 residential units to include 50 affordable homes for rental and shared ownership, aimed at local people and first time buyers.

You can look at the plans in Walthamstow Library or online at www.walthamforest.gov.uk/betterplace

If you want to get involved, please send your feedback to us by Friday 30 November.

Better Schools

As part of our drive to create a better place to live, we are investing in schools to give our children the best chance of a bright future.

Chingford Hall Primary School has had work done to accommodate an additional reception class. Gwyn Jones Primary School in Leytonstone now has an additional two reception classes, a new admin block, two new classrooms and has received a makeover to the front of the building with a new entrance and offices.

St Saviours C of E Primary School in Walthamstow is now in its final phase of work. The school has already seen an additional ten classrooms and an office built, and now the hall, library and kitchen facilities will be refurbished. Work is expected to be completed in summer 2013.
